P23473

ABSTRACT

A data transmitter for detecting a reference time stamp for use in reproducing a system clock from a transport packet data of a first transport stream, adding the detected reference time stamp as a header information to the transport packet data, 5 converting the transport packet data and the header information into a second transport stream, and transmitting the second transport stream.